The U.S. Soccer Foundation is reaching more players than ever before, thanks to the assistance of our partners who are supporting soccer's growth in the United States.

We are pleased to be part of this "team" and our 2007 Annual Report is designed to showcase the integrated effort that enhances our activities across the field. We hope that the story of our team and its players will inspire you to continue supporting the game through the Foundation, the Major Charitable Arm of Soccer in the U.S.

A successful team needs strong players at every position. Like many teams, we build from the back, with our Board of Directors in goal, providing leadership and protecting us from problems that develop in the run of play. Our defenders, the cornerstone of everything we do, include the U.S. Soccer Federation and its affiliates, the companies in our Partners Resource Center, our champions in the media and our Government Relations activities.

Just as on the field, our midfielders generate support for our activities and help us push forward. Major League Soccer (MLS) and its teams are critical members of our Passback network, the new Urban Soccer Collaborative is helping us and its members share experiences and information about how best to expand the game in economically disadvantaged urban areas and our Soccer Funders Network promises to provide similar rewards to its members.

The whole purpose of the game is to score goals and show results on the field. That's where our strikers come in. Our program grants, field building activities and Passback have increased the opportunities for young people to play soccer across the country. As on any team, strikers depend not only on the players on the field with them, but on the "12th man" in the stands — you, our donors and supporters. The resources you provide go directly — and entirely — into our goal scoring activities, since all overhead costs are covered by our endowment. We appreciate your generosity this year, as it will help us continue to grow our fan support.

Best wishes.

Annual Grants Program / Striker

Soccer is known worldwide as The Beautiful Game, thanks to its fluid movement and constant action. As the Foundation's activities demonstrate, the game's beauty extends beyond the field. Programs, supported by the Foundation, teach children life lessons about the value of exercise, teamwork, community and leadership along with the joys of the game.

Annual Grants Program

Developing Players, Coaches and Referees

The Annual Grants Program has provided support to 439 groups in every state of the country, as part of the $45 million the Foundation has invested in the growth of soccer.

Last year, the Foundation focused on providing grants to programs that develop players, coaches and referees in economically disadvantaged urban areas with populations of 100,000 or more. The 30 program grants awarded in 2007 impacted 25 urban communities in 17 states and the District of Columbia.

These grants address a broad spectrum of needs as illustrated by the following three grants.

The Ebony City Soccer Club (ECSC), located in Charleston, South Carolina, is using the Foundation's grant to launch an "in-house" youth development league in four sites throughout the city. ECSC is the only organization offering youth soccer to these inner-city children and hopes that this organized sports program, coupled with academic support, will prevent school dropouts and delinquency.

The Southern California Youth Soccer Organization's Interliga Select Program will take place in some of the most economically depressed urban areas of Southern California, including Compton, South Central Los Angeles, Norwalk, San Bernardino, the San Fernando Valley and Orange County. These areas are home to approximately 65 independent Hispanic leagues, involving more than 60,000 youth players, all of whom operate outside the sphere of the U.S. Soccer Federation. With the implementation of the Interliga Select Program, the stage is set to identify talented youth and prepare them to compete at a higher level with increased opportunities for success.

The Bay Area Outreach and Recreation Program (BORP) is focused on bringing the game of soccer to individuals who would not otherwise have access to the sport because of their disabilities. The Foundation's award will be used by BORP to help develop a national team of elite athletes to compete internationally; to increase local, national and international awareness of the sport; and to be a leader in providing equal access for everyone to soccer, a sport that continues to unify the world.

Soccer United Recovery Fund

Two years removed from the devastating effects of Hurricanes Katrina, Rita and Wilma, the Soccer United Recovery Fund continued to provide important funding and resources to help rebuild the game across the Gulf Coast region. The Foundation established the Recovery Fund in September 2005, in partnership with Eurosport and other national and regional soccer partners, as a response to the immense challenges facing the game throughout the region. To date, nearly $600,000 in direct grant support and donated equipment has been provided to over 30 local communities from south Texas to Florida, including three field projects in Louisiana. Thanks to the generous support of more than 1,000 soccer enthusiasts and dozens of generous companies, the Recovery Fund has touched 14,000 players, coaches and referees across the Gulf Coast region.

Passback Program/Striker

Passback

Share the Equipment. Share the Game!

Without the proper equipment you can't get into the game. The Passback Program is designed to help meet the soccer uniform and equipment needs of all communities, regardless of income, gender or location by collecting and distributing new and gently used equipment. The grassroots initiative is a joint effort among the U.S. Soccer Foundation, Eurosport and Major League Soccer (MLS).

This summer the Foundation, along with presenting sponsor Western Union, organized a series of soccer skills clinics for urban Hispanic youth across the country. The 2007 Passback Tour reached approximately 1,000 children in eight cities — Chicago, Dallas, Houston, Los Angeles, Miami, New Orleans, New York and Washington, D.C. The clinics were run by professional players, including several MLS stars, and local youth coaches. Each participant received a new soccer ball (donated by SCORE American Soccer Company) and a jersey (donated by Jerzees). The Foundation's long-time partner, Eurosport, provided logistical support and raffled off prizes at many of the clinics. The 2007 Tour was a fantastic success — look for the 2008 Tour coming to a city near you! Visit passback.org to learn more.

Individual "Passback Stars" continued to organize collection events in their local community. The Foundation encourages boys and girls to become Stars by collecting a minimum of 250 pieces of soccer equipment for children in need in their community. Eighteen-year-old Tanner King, of Houston, Texas, had a particularly strong impact on his community. King, one of 81 young people across the country to become a Passback Star this year collected 2,118 pieces of equipment for distribution to local children as part of an Eagle Scout project.

Throughout the 2007 season, MLS teams collected fan-donated new or gently used soccer gear as part of the U.S. Soccer Foundation's MLS Passback Challenge. MLS teams appointed a Passback Spokesperson to represent the team at Passback collection and donation events, as well as to encourage fans' participation.

Field Grants

Building Soccer ... One Field at a Time.

Many U.S. cities lack suitable places for sports and recreation. Field Grants from the Foundation help provide young people, especially inner city children, with more places and opportunities to play The Beautiful Game.

The Foundation awards three types of grants supporting the construction and improvement of soccer fields. All Conditions Fields (ACF) Grants, awarded through the Foundation's partnership with NikeGO, support the development of synthetic grass fields. Field Enhancement Grants improve fields by adding new goals, irrigation and/or lighting. Planning Grants provide funding assistance to develop a master plan for proposed field projects through the support of Foundation partner Clough Harbour Sports.

In addition, the Foundation published The Soccer Field Handbook in 2007, with the assistance of Soccer America. The Handbook is a comprehensive resource on all things related to the development of soccer fields in your community, from getting local political approval to deciding whether to use synthetic or natural grass.

We are very excited about the new soccer field donated by Nike and the U.S. Soccer Foundation to our Robert V. Murray Clubhouse #11. We are looking forward to utilizing this field as part of our Sports Fitness & Recreation core area as well as to reintroduce the sport of soccer and the values of teamwork and sportsmanship.

— Will Gunn, President and CEO, Boys & Girls Club of Greater Washington.

This year, the Foundation awarded field grants to 26 organizations to help provide more places to play the game of soccer.

In 2007, the Foundation and its Partners joined several Grantees in celebrating the grand opening of new All Conditions Fields.

The Foundation and Nike celebrated the opening of a world-class FieldTurf mini soccer field at the Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Washington — Robert V. Murray Clubhouse #11 (see cover photo) in southeast Washington, D.C. The new field is a significant improvement over the often-flooded parking lot it replaced. Soccer star Freddy Adu joined the dedication festivities and led a soccer clinic for local children to inaugurate the facility.

The City of Sacramento debuted its first synthetic soccer field with a festival including a 6-on-6 tournament, soccer clinics and a game among semi-professional players. Located in East Sacramento as part of the new Granite Regional Park Complex, the FieldTurf field provides new opportunities for children and adults to play the Beautiful Game on a state-of-the-art, all-weather field.

An ACF Grant supported the development of a new FieldTurf training field at the University of Portland's Clive Charles Soccer Complex. The complex honors the legacy of the late Charles, who coached the University of Portland Men's and Women's squads until 2002. The field is a resource for the University teams and serves youth soccer programs in the Portland community.

Successful goal scorers have teammates who can get them the ball in the right position. Our “midfielders” help us reach the organizations working to further the Foundation’s mission.

Major League Soccer

Playing with the Pros

The Foundation has been a major partner of MLS for more than a decade. The Foundation and the League have a shared history, tracing back to the 1994 FIFA Men’s World Cup, and a common vision for the future, growing the game of soccer in the United States. MLS W.O.R.K.S. (the charitable arm of MLS), the League and its players are instrumental in supporting the Foundation’s efforts.

The Foundation is an MLS Charity of Choice and the recipient of all player fines at the end of each season. All of these funds go into the annual grants pool. The MLS Players’ Award grants are provided annually in recognition of this contribution. The recipients are selected by the Foundation, in partnership with the MLS Players Union and those Union members chosen by their teams as “U.S. Soccer Foundation Humanitarians of the Year.” In 2007, the National Sports Center for the Disabled in Denver, the United Neighborhood Organization in Chicago and the Southern California Youth Soccer Organization in Los Angeles were designated as “MLS Players Award Grantees.” The grants provided equipment for thousands of players, coaches and referees touched by these organizations.

The Foundation further strengthened its partnership with the League’s players through a grant to the MLS Players Union.

Kids are our future, and if you give them a chance to go and enjoy themselves, you’ll find some of the greatest players in the world. Some of the kids with the most ability will come out of places like Harlem where they haven’t got the money. It’s because the kids are hungry. They’re hungry to win and get a better life.

— David Beckham at a soccer clinic in Harlem, N.Y., co-organized by the U.S. Soccer Foundation and MLS W.O.R.K.S.

REBETO MATTHEWS AP

This three-year award will help offset expenses associated with launching the Union’s new Career Development Program, designed to help prepare MLS players for life after their playing career. One aspect of the program is to match players with coaching opportunities across the country.

MLS also promotes the Foundation’s signature Passback Program through highly visible field boards at stadiums and public service announcements airing during televised games. A Passback Spokesperson, designated by each MLS team, helps increase awareness and encourages donations to the program.

Connecting Through Soccer/Midfielder

Urban Soccer Collaborative and Soccer Funders Network

Connecting Through Soccer

The Foundation works to bring together diverse organizations supporting the growth of soccer.

Urban Soccer Collaborative

The Urban Soccer Collaborative extends the Foundation's emphasis on economically disadvantaged urban areas beyond the awarding of individual grants. The Foundation organized the inaugural meeting of the Collaborative last year, laying the groundwork for networking and partnership opportunities among urban soccer programs nationwide. The Collaborative is open to any organization working to increase playing opportunities for inner-city children.

This year, the Foundation launched the online home of the Urban Soccer Collaborative. Current members, or those interested in creating a new program, may now access best practices, success stories and more drawn from decades of experience in urban soccer programming. The website highlights program success stories, including reducing peer conflict among youth, developing talent for the Olympic Development Program and opening the door to soccer scholarships from private high schools and colleges. To learn more, visit ussoccerfoundation.org/urbansoccer.

The Foundation spearheaded the establishment of the Soccer Funders Network with the goal of connecting urban soccer organizations with soccer funders, and to provide a forum for members to share best practices and develop strategies for collaboration.

The Soccer Funders Network, comprised of both public and private soccer charities, supports the growth of soccer, with a specific focus on serving children in economically disadvantaged rural and urban communities across the country.

Through the Foundation website, the Funders Network provides an online resource for soccer clubs, teams and organizations seeking support. As the Network grows we hope it will encourage cooperation among soccer organizations to increase support for at-risk children, families and communities. # Defender / Government Relations

It's been said that, "defense wins championships" and that a strong team leads from the back. The Foundation is very fortunate to have a strong and dependable backline of partners that support our efforts to expand the game to diverse communities across the country and around the world.

Government Relations

Passion in Action

The Foundation's Washington, D.C., location affords unique access to federal decision makers and global representatives who have a passion for the game and the benefits that come from playing it. The Foundation, and the game as a whole, is fortunate to enjoy the continued cooperation of key public leaders.

The Foundation recently completed a major grant project supported by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development enabling the construction of synthetic grass fields in central Los Angeles and Jacksonville, Florida, and the creation of soccer programs in the District of Columbia and rural eastern Kentucky. These four grants support soccer programs engaging more than 3,000 young people each year.

Working with the U.S. Soccer Federation, the Foundation provided the U.S. State Department's Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs with technical assistance and equipment for soccer exchanges in Africa and Asia, such as hosting Awista Ayub, founder of the Afghan Youth Sports Exchange, and a delegation of pioneering Afghani women (See photo at right). During their American odyssey, the group enjoyed exposure to all levels of organized soccer — including attending a clinic hosted by the

AMERICA SCORES

Washington Freedom women's team, as well as D.C. United and U.S. Women's National Team matches. The women received formal soccer coaching certifications before returning home to expand the opportunities for girls in Afghanistan.

With the arrival of the 110th Congress in January, the Foundation and the new leadership of the Congressional Soccer Caucus cheered the expansion of the Caucus' membership to a record high of nearly 40 members. The bipartisan group supports legislation, activities and events that promote the game. Some important issues being advanced by the Soccer Caucus include:

- Addressing the need for more safe places to play soccer;
- Encouraging public-private partnerships that utilize soccer to provide at-risk youth with structured after-school activities;
- Promoting soccer as a lifelong healthy physical activity; and
- Supporting the preservation of Title IX.

To find out how you can get involved visit ussoccerfoundation.org.

Members of the Afghan exchange program received coaching certifications during their visit to the United States in July, 2007.

Building Soccer's Future

Applying a team philosophy to all our work, the Foundation has created relationships between Corporate Partners committed to developing the game in this country and Community Partners in need of guidance and support.

The Partners Resource Center offers Community Partners a comprehensive resource for planning, designing, and developing soccer projects and programs. Working with the Foundation and its Corporate Partners, Community Partners receive feedback from experts in the soccer industry, as well as access to significant discounts on soccer products and services.

Media Outreach

Attention Soccer Supporters!

The Foundation's media outreach has increased the visibility of our organization, our Grantees and our Partners. The added visibility attracts new donors, partners and organizations in need of the Foundation's support.

Fox Soccer Channel produced and aired the Foundation's 2007 Public Service Announcement and created a segment about the grand opening of the mini field in Washington, D.C. HDNet also aired the Foundation's PSA during its MLS coverage.

An official supporter of the Passback Program, Comcast SportsNet produced a 30-second segment featuring several D.C. United stars. The network aired the spot in the greater Washington, D.C., region during the 2007 MLS season to help D.C. United and the Foundation collect equipment during the club's home soccer matches.

The Inter-American Development Bank, the Council of the Americas, the Foundation and GoTV hosted a reception, auction and viewing party around Copa America 2007. The event raised awareness of soccer and furthered the Foundation's efforts to bring soccer programs to at-risk Hispanic youth in the nation's capital. Proceeds from the event benefited the Latin American Youth Center's after-school soccer program for low-income Hispanic youth, ages 6-18, in Washington, D.C.

The Foundation's website — ussoccerfoundation.org — provides the general public with information about its mission, goals and accomplishments. The Foundation's monthly electronic newsletter, In Touch, provide updates on grantees, programs and events.

Defender/Mobilizing Soccer Communities

U.S. Soccer Federation, U.S. Adult Soccer Association, U.S. Youth Soccer, American Youth Soccer Organization, Soccer Association for Youth

Mobilizing Soccer Communities in the United States

The United States soccer community includes a wide range of organizations and individuals working together to further the game. From grassroots community activism to top-flight international competitions, all organizations play their part.

In 1994, the FIFA World Cup, the world's most popular tournament, came to America. The U.S. Soccer Federation hosted and organized the festivities, netting a significant surplus. To manage those funds, the Federation established the U.S. Soccer Foundation in 1995. In the years that have followed the Federation and the Foundation have collaborated on a number of projects. Recently, the Foundation worked with the Federation to raise funds for the U.S. Soccer National Training Center at the Home Depot Center and for the Glenn "Mooch" Myernick Memorial Fund in support of urban soccer initiatives (see page 19).

In 2007, the Foundation awarded a grant to the U.S. Adult Soccer Association to support the implementation of a national online registration system that will provide USASA members with a centralized process to register players, track payments and communicate with teams and leagues. Once launched, the USASA will be the first national organization member of the U.S. Soccer Federation with the ability to register players at the local level while simultaneously collecting player demographic information across the country.

Soccer is the number one youth participation sport in within the United States and the Foundation enjoys a close working relationship with U.S. Youth Soccer (USYS), American Youth Soccer Organization and the Soccer Association for Youth . The organizations share similar beliefs about the benefits that soccer offers to youth and families in communities across the country. In September, the Foundation worked with USYS to promote Youth Soccer Month and educate the public about the joys, rewards and benefits of youth soccer.

Remembering Friends of the Game

Much of the Foundation's work supports the next generation of soccer stars, but we follow in the footsteps of those who have come before us. The United States soccer community lost some icons this year. These individuals played an integral role in the growth of the game of soccer in the United States and they will be sorely missed. The Foundation asks you to join us in remembering and celebrating the following friends of soccer whom we lost during the past year.

JOHN GILMAN was the Chief Executive Officer of FieldTurf Inc. and worldwide CEO of the sports division of FieldTurf Tarkett. A professional football player and coach with the Canadian Football League's Montreal Alouettes in the 1960s, Gilman built FieldTurf Tarkett into the largest entity in the sports surfacing industry and ensured that the company conducted extensive research and development to improve the quality and longevity of FieldTurf in its application across a variety of sports. FieldTurf has been a long-time supporter of the Foundation.

LAMAR HUNT was an early investor in the North American Soccer League and Major League Soccer. The Hunt Sports Group operates FC Dallas, the Columbus Crew, and, until 2006, ran the Kansas City Wizards. For his efforts to build soccer in the United States, Hunt was inducted into the National Soccer Hall of Fame, awarded the National Soccer Medal of Honor and received the MLS Commissioner's Award. In 1999 The U.S. Soccer Federation's National Championship was renamed the Lamar Hunt U.S. Open Cup. Hunt also received the Foundation's first "Lifetime Achievement Award" in 2005.

GLENN "MOOCH" MYERNICK was an assistant coach on the U.S. Men's National Team in the last two World Cups. He also coached the U.S. Under-23 and Under-17 Men's National Teams and MLS's Colorado Rapids. As a player, Myernick suited up for the National Team and U.S. Olympic Team, and starred in the North American Soccer League. The Foundation's Mooch Myernick Fund, established at the request of the Myernick family, has raised more than $250,000 for metropolitan soccer clubs and organizations to increase the number of urban children playing the sport.

GINO PARIANI was a member of the 1950 U.S. World Cup team and the 1948 U.S. Olympic squad. He played for the mostly amateur U.S. squad in its shocking 1-0 defeat of England at the 1950 World Cup in Brazil. The story of the 1950 team was recounted in the 2005 film, "The Game of Their Lives." Pariani is a member of the National Soccer Hall of Fame.

PAUL TOBIN was the founder of Official Sports International (OSI), which outfits amateur and professional soccer referees around the world. OSI has served as the exclusive supplier of U.S. Soccer Federation referee apparel and accessories since 1998, and the company also supplies uniforms to referees in the English Premier League.

DAVID VANOLE was a U.S. Men's National Team player and coach. The goalkeeper led UCLA to an NCAA championship, played in the American Professional Soccer League and helped the U.S. squad during the 1988 Olympics and its qualification for the 1990 World Cup. Vanole served as an assistant coach to college, professional and U.S. National teams. In consultation with the Vanole family, the Foundation established the David Charles Vanole Memorial Fund to help create and sustain soccer opportunities for underserved urban children, with an emphasis on communities in Southern California.

I was lucky that I grew up in a neighborhood, both in Ghana and here in the States, where each day I could play soccer every chance I got. As a kid, being active and playing around is an important part of your childhood and I learned first-hand how much it can help you — keeping your body and mind healthy.

— Freddy Adu at the opening of a mini-pitch field at the Boys & Girls Club of Greater Washington, D.C.
